The Olio.

[From the London Imperial Magazine.] THE PLEASURE OF READING. Some follow pleasure in the chase, Others in building towers; These in the smile of beauty's face, And those in tisted flowers; But give to me a pleasant book, That's fit for mental feeding, Lost earthly joys I'll calmly brook, For undisturbed reading.

I envy not the man of wealth, The titled, or the rover; Who waste the vital lamp of health, And think they live in clover; Let me in some sequestered grove. From vanity receding, With one heart-touching volume rove, I'll solace find in reading.

The classic page of those alive, Or wits of ancient story ; With purest honey fill my hive, And raise my heart to glory; I cull the flowers of Rome and Greece. And every age succeeding;

(Prized more than Jason's golden fleece,) The sweet reward of reading. Like bees I range the g y parterre, Its nectared sweetness borrow:

And find a balm for all my care, A recipe for sorrow, The worthies of the olden time, Heroes and martyrs bleeding, Embalmed in the page sublime, Encircle me while reading. Poet, and traveller, and sage,

Seer, prophet, saint, and druid, With richer pictures fill the page, Than fill the vale of Clwyd; I glance my thoughts from that to this, No other pastime reeding; Books are the patentees of bliss, When truth is sought in reading.

The soul by reading grows refined, Though tinge of melancholy May cast a shadow o'er the mind, 'Tis not the shade of folly Faith glances at the future crown, For which my Lord is pleading; And when I lay the volume down, Prayer sanctifies my reading.

Let fishion boast its magic ring, And wealth its mansion splendid; Soft music melt and sirens sing, Till life's gav dream is ended. Give me a book with seal of mind Impressed on every section; I'll pass the vale of life resigned, In reading and reflection.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE-It is mentioned in the Life of Dr. J. Wallis, who lived in the 17th century, that a learned French gentleman proposed to him the following four chosen ines, composed on purpose, boasting from it wonderfully of the facility of the French language, which expressed kindred senses kindred senses by words conjoined by no re-
